

Leiden's Student-Run
Journal on Global Affairs

Call for Submissions

“Without knowing the force of words it is impossible to know more”
- Confucius

Have you thought about getting published, but don't know where to start?

The Leiden International Review (LIR) aims to provide a platform for young scholars to share their expertise and voice their opinions.

If you have an interest in international relations, regional studies, political science or simply a passion for current affairs or critical analysis, then this is your opportunity to share your work.

We would like to invite you to contribute articles with a broad focus on Asian and Oceanian Affairs.

The escalating tensions in the Korean peninsula, humanitarian crisis in Myanmar, ongoing territorial conflicts in the South China Sea, and the implications of climate change for island nations of the South Pacific are just some of the issues that have made international headlines. In our interconnected world, regional stories like these have become increasingly relevant for all of us.

We are accepting submissions between 500-750 words until October 31st.

If you are a student, faculty member or external contributor who is interested in having your writing published with us, please check out our website for more information on our publishing guidelines.

Send your articles to submissions@leideninternationalreview.com

